NOTE FOR: Mr. Bannerman

1. I recently learned that TSD is proposing to put into the Mid-Career Training Course selected employees in Grades 15, 16 and possibly 17. A number of their people, although attaining high grades, have never had positions of responsibility where management of people and components was involved. Now that these employees will be moving into management positions, TSD feels that they could benefit materially from training they would receive in the Mid-Career Course. I have also heard that the Directorate of Science and Technology have generally the same reasons for having a number of their higher grade personnel enter the Mid-Career Course.

2. If this feeling that personnel in grades higher than normally taken into the Mid-Career Course is present to a significant enough degree it may warrant the development and running of a new management course tailored to attain specific objectives.
